

Training on responsible use of antibiotics

Vets at Synergy Farm Health have set a target for 2015 as part of their ongoing work to promote the safe use of antibiotics within the farming industry. By the end of 2015 they aim to have provided information, advice and training about the responsible use of antibiotics to 80% of their clients.

Andy Adler, director at Synergy Farm Health explains: "It is our New Year's resolution to ensure that our clients receive advanced training on how to use antibiotics in the most responsible, effective and cost-effective way."

The two hour course follows a FarmSkills template and all attendees receive a certificate on completion. Courses are planned throughout the practice region of Devon, Dorset and Somerset.
